UFHR Stables

3.1 Standard Stables

STANDARD STABLES

Standard stables are for horses that are still racing and have not retired yet.

3.1.0- All standard stables are used for horses two years old and up that are still racing and earning.

3.1.1- If a horse retires, the owner must make the league aware and have the horse moved to the owners' retirement stable. If an owner chooses to release the horse, the horse must first go through a claiming auction before it can be released to the UFHR horse pool.

3.1.2- Standard Stables breakdown (see 3.3.0 Stable types)

3.1.3- If an owner has all 5 stalls filled and is trying to bring in a sixth horse, that owner will have to take on another stable or make room by selling or releasing horses.

3.1.4- Standard Stable Fee will cost $5.99 USD per month, and each additional stable an owner takes on is an additional Standard Stable Fee per month. For example, if you own a Residential Stable with 5 stalls and would like more stalls, you would have to take on another $5.99 stable fee, and now that you are paying $11.98 USD per month, you will get twice as many stalls as well (10 total stalls).

3.1.5- 90% of Standard Stable Fees go to UFHR yearly payout pool.

3.1.6- 10% of Standard Stable Fees go to league development.

3.1 Standard Stables

3.2 Retirement Stables

RETIREMENT STABLES

Retirement Stables are for horses that are no longer racing and have value outside of racing.

3.2.0- All retirement stables are for owners and bloodstock agents to house their dams and sires.

3.2.1- In order for an owner or bloodstock agent to profit off a horse, the horse must be in their stable at least 24 hours before a profit is earned.

3.2.2- Owner's Retirement Stables will always have the same amount of stalls as the owner's standard stables. For example, if an owner has a professional standard stable with 15 stalls, when that owner takes on a retirement stable, it will also have 15 stalls.

3.2.3- Bloodstock Agent's Retirement Stables will only be allowed to hold 5 stalls.

3.2.4- If an owner or bloodstock agent has all 8 stalls filled and is trying to bring in a ninth horse, that owner will have to take on another retirement stable or make room by selling or releasing horses.

3.2.5- Retirement Stable Fee will cost $3.99 USD per month, and each additional stable an owner or bloodstock agent takes on is also an additional Retirement Stable Fee per month.

3.2.6- 90% of Retirement Stable Fees go to UFHR yearly payout pool.

3.2.6- 10% of Retirement Stable Fees go to league development.

3.2 Retirement Stables
